how to buy your expressrange DIY kitchen

Design

You can design your kitchen yourself using our design guide in this brochure.

If you would prefer some professional design help, just book a design studio appointment with one of our consultants at our showrooms. They will be able to provide you with a layout, product list and price specifically for our express range. This costs just $95 incl GST and can save you time if you prefer a professional approach!

Measuring & site survey

To ensure that your design will work in your space or to make sure that your installation can go smoothly, you will need to have accurate measurements. If you would like a kitchen professional to carry out a site survey at a reasonable cost ask a consultant to arrange this for you. A kitchen installer will then visit your home to measure and our consultant will create the design. This costs just $245 incl GST.

Installation service

Once you know what you want and have the design completed you may want help with installation. We can provide you with a professional installer who can give you an obligation-free estimate for services including:

- Removing your old kitchen
- Installation of your new cabinets
- Installation of your bench top

Other services or contact information of professional tradespeople can be supplied upon request.

Collection

Kitchen Craftsmen will manufacture AND assemble your kitchen items just for you. When they are ready, you will be able to collect them from our factory in Joondalup. As they are pre-assembled, we save you time, money and effort and save on unnecessary packaging materials. You will need to bring a trailer or suitable vehicle for collection. Items will usually be ready within 5 working days of your order and must be collected within 48 hours of their manufacturing date. This date will be agreed with you to fit in with your plans.

Delivery

If you need your kitchen delivered, you can either arrange for your chosen service provider to collect on your behalf or we can arrange delivery for you with a third party courier. All orders must be paid for in full when ordering.

Note: All product information and prices are valid until August 2012. Please check sizes with a sales consultant.

Measure your room. Twice!

Getting your correct room measurements is important – it can be the difference between a kitchen that fits and one that doesn't. But we can help you with the guide below or even arrange a professional measure.

1. To start, measure the outline of the room by measuring the walls, between each corner.
2. Measure anything that sticks out such as pillars, other shallow walls, pipes etc. Also measure the floor to ceiling and include any bulkhead dimensions. Mark them all on your drawing.
3. Then measure and draw up any window or door. Include the widths and heights and also depths of sills or reveals. Very importantly, make a note of the height of the window from the floor. This will indicate if your benchtop is also your windowsill.
4. Check the position of power outlets, lights switches, aircon or security switches. Measure the distance from a corner and mark it clearly on your drawing. If you are prepared to have these moved, make a note of where they could go.
5. Last but not least, measure and mark where your water supply comes in and very importantly, where the waste is. If the waste pipe goes out of the wall or goes straight into the floor, you will need to know, especially if you are going to include a dishwasher.

If you would like a professional site survey for just $245, ask about our Installation Partners who can measure your kitchen and if you want, install it too.

Planning your kitchen - What should you think about?

Designing your own kitchen can be daunting. That's why we've put some top tips here, for you to consider. After all, it can be difficult enough cooking the meal, without the added hassle of a design that doesn't work well!

- a. If possible, imagine a triangle between your cook top, fridge and sink. Building your kitchen around this will get some order of flow into the room.
- b. Wherever possible, design at least 150mm of benchtop either side of your cooktop – the more the better, especially for when you are serving straight from the pan onto the plate. For this you would need about 300mm.
- c. Always allow enough space for the correct sink. In tight areas where space is limited, you can use mobile drainers that cover the sink. This can sometimes be used as additional benchtop. But give it enough distance from the cook top.
- d. Allow up to 920mm from the floor to the top of benchtop. This gives you a good working height. Then allow 458mm between the benchtop and the underside of your wall cabinets. The total height with our Express Range will be approx. 2100mm to the top of a Wall or Tall cabinet. (That's why it's important to check your ceiling and bulkhead heights!)
- e. If you aren't going to be replacing your floor covering, check the distance from the wall to the front of your existing kickboard. It will need to be the same or less than your new kitchen – otherwise a deeper benchtop will be required and the cabinets must be set off the wall.
- f. Lastly, think about whether you need any doors to open with a left hinge or a right hinge. That will help to make the kitchen work properly without the problems of having awkward access to that all important saucepan!

Remember – for just $95 we can also offer a design service for you in-house, from exact measurements you supply. Also, if you need a different solution, ask to see our other ranges where cabinets are made to measure, site surveys are carried out by us and installation is part of our full project management service.
